Common Patterns: Customer Assistants, Employee Productivity, and Creative Scale

Across the 1,001 use cases, the source brief highlights three dominant deployment patterns.

Conversational customer agents

- Mercedes-Benz, GM OnStar, VW, and LUXGEN deploy AI-powered virtual assistants.
- Financial services and retail examples include Commerzbank and Mercari.
- Pattern: handle customer queries, reduce waits, and lower human workloads.

Employee productivity agents

- Uber summarizes CS communications and prior interaction context.
- Rivian and Geotab use Gemini for Workspace for research, summaries, legal review, and data filtering.
- Pattern: broad use across HR, engineering, legal, and operations.

Creative at scale agents

- Virgin Voyages creates thousands of hyper-personalized ads and emails with Veo.
- Figma creates brand-approved images and assets in seconds.
- PODS adapts billboard headlines across NYC neighborhoods in real time.

Takeaways: Where to Start and What to Expect from Enterprise Gen AI

01

Gen AI is production-ready across all major industries

The report spans 11 industry groups and organizations worldwide.

02

Start with customer and employee agents

The brief identifies these as dominant entry points across the use cases.

03

Measure value in months, not theory

Reported outcomes include 500% ROI, 30% workload reduction, and 10,000+ man-hours saved annually.

04

Track creative and code agents as fast-moving frontiers

Vevo campaigns, Figma assets, PODS billboards, and Gemini Code Assist show expansion beyond text.

05

Expect acceleration and compounding advantage

The list grew 10× in 18 months, with 400 entries added in the latest update.

Portfolio lens

Prioritize use cases by industry context, agent type, and measurable operating impact.
